

BOB TAYLOR
DIED SUNDAY

Apostle of Sunshine Claimed
By Death In Washington.

DEATH FOLLOWED OPERATION

Body Will Be Taken to Knoxville and Funeral Will Be Held To-morrow.

Washington, D. C., April 1.—Senator Robert L. Taylor died at 9:30 yesterday morning.

At 2 o'clock a. m. his physician,
Dr. Harrison Crook, realized the senator was dying, and summoned
Mrs. Taylor and David Taylor, his son, to the hospital. Senator Luke Lea arrived at 3 o'clock, and with David Taylor left at daybreak, not thinking that the end was so near.
At the bedside when he died were Mrs. Taylor and Dr. Crook.

Except for trouble with his breathing, which was caused by his lungs
being stopped up, Senator Taylor
had not been in pain since Thursday morning, a short time after he was operated on for gallstones.

Funeral at Knoxville.

The body will be taken to Knoxville, where the funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon.

Senator Taylor's illness dates back three months. Throughout that time he had been in bad health. His complexion was bad and he lacked energy, and the humor that has always given such a delightful flavor to his friendships was noticeable by the rarity of its appearance. Ever since the first of the year the senator's old friends had been shaking their heads and muttering, "I am afraid we are going to lose 'Our Bob.'" But neither the senator nor his friends realized the seriousness of the illness which was then in its incipient stage. He was suffering from gallstones.

Senator Taylor was 62 years old.
He was born in Happy Valley, Carter county, East Tennessee, at the place on the Watauga river where the fort was established by Tennessee's first governor, John Sevier.
He was the son of Nathaniel G. Taylor and Emily Haynes Taylor, sister of Landon C. Haynes, Confederate
member of congress from Tennessee.
Senator Taylor was elected to the Forty-sixth congress from the First district in 1878. He was elected governor of Tennessee in 1886 and re-elected in 1888 and elected for a third term in 1896. Senator Taylor is the only man who ever served three terms as governor of Tennessee. His term as United States senator will expire March 3, 1913, and
Gov. Hooper will probably appoint a Republican to the vacancy.

Disposes of Infant.

Madisonville, Ky., March 29.—A sensation was created in Blackford,
in Webster county, this morning
when a northbound passenger train stopped at the station and a well-dressed young woman, carrying a baby in her arms, alighted and stepping up to a little girl on the platform, asked her to hold it, and boarded the moving train before the little girl could gather her wits. The young woman has not yet been located.

Former leader of the minority in congress, and now speaker of the house, Champ Clark has plenty of record on which to base his candidacy for the Democratic nomination, and his boomers are taking every advantage of it.
Mr. Clark has been active in congress for so many years that his position on most questions is well known to the public. Missouri is for him strong since the retirement of Joseph Folk in his favor.

Mayor W. O. Head, of Louisville, has declared for Clark. Ollie James will be his manager in Kentucky.

ONE NEGRO KILLS ANOTHER

Shooting Took Place On Princeton Road Saturday Night.

BULLET STRUCK NEAR HEART

Man Charged With Killing Was Lodged In Jail Here
Sunday.

Ed White and Bud Word, both colored, became involved in a difficulty Saturday night and the former was shot and killed. The killing occurred in the Princeton road, about three miles west of the city. White was a farm hand, aged 36 years, and worked for Mr. Prentice Mercer, just north of the city. He and Fred Ship, another negro, were enroute to the home of Cy Shipp, col., when they met Word and his brother, Vernon Word, who were coming to town. It seems that White owed Bud Word 50 cents and Word asked White for the money. After the debt was paid the men continued to talk about the matter and a row resulted. White had two bottles of beer in his pockets and it is said that he reached for one of them, when Word saw the motion as if to draw a gun on him and he then pulled his pistol and commenced shooting.
He fired three shots, one of the balls entering White's breast, near the heart. The other two balls went wild. After White was shot he put on his overcoat, and, walking away about ten or fifteen steps, fell and expired. The killing was witnessed by both Vernon Word and Fred Shipp.

Bud Word worked on Dr. L. J.
Harris' place. He was brought into the city Sunday by Mr. Lucian Harris and placed in jail to await his ex-aming trial.

WAS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Entertainment Friday Night
Was Attended By Large Crowd.

LAUGHABLE START TO FINISH.

Young People And Teachers
From The County
Schools.

The show given by the County Teachers' Club Friday night was successful in every way. The Opera House was full to overflowing. The entertainment made such a hit that Pembroke has asked for it and it
he repeated there Friday night.
Miss Jennie West, who planned the show, is receiving many congratulations on its success.

The program was in three parts,
opening with a farce "Murder Will Out." The characters were Grandmother Stiles, taken by Mrs. Lucy Fisher, and three girls, who were involved in some amusing complicatives while planning to attend a masquerade ball. Misses Elizabeth Henry, Katherine Major and Helen Thompson as the girls and Misses Kate Swift and Lucile Goodwin as Dinah, the colored cook, and Bridget the Irish maid, were all clever and pleasing in their several parts.

In the second part Misses Edna Cayce and Lena Thacker and Harry Hayes presented a little comedy entitled "Kentucky Philosophy," in a most laughable manner.

The Village School of old times
concluded the performance.

In this burlesque S. T. Fruit was of directors. Committees of three members each will be appointed as follows: Finance, information and tainment.

Not For Champ.

Our friend Ollie James in his boost for Champ Clark failed to mention that Clark killed Canadian reciprocity by shooting off his mouth about annexation and that he went out of his way as Speaker to vote to give every Federal soldier a dollar a day
pension.—Elizabethtown News.

MAGAZINES

Wide World Magazine.

The Wide World Magazine for April contains a remarkable number of articles and stories dealing with different quarters of the globe. Maj.
C. H. Buck discusses "The Servant Problem in India" and Mrs. Marguerite Robey continues her articles descriptive of her adventures in the Congo. Capt. A. H. W. Haywood begins a series of interesting and well illustrated papers, which he entitles: "From Sierra Leone to Al-piers Across the Sahara." This is a feat which has never before or since been accomplished. Most deep-water sailors have seen or heard of that curious ocean phenomenon that is known as "the rollers." In a thrilling story entitled "In the Sea Lions' Den" Commander J. Macnab describes the nerve-rivng predicament in which they landed him and his ship-mate, Jim Brady. Mr. A.
E. Johnson describes his wonderful voyage of "Ten Thousand Miles in a Nine-ton Yacht." There are many other interesting articles and stories
all profusely illustrated, mostly by photographs.

Strand Magazine

Two notable articles appear in the April Strand—"The Kaiser as He Is," written with the German Emperor's approval, and "My Reminis-cences," by Sun Yat Sen. Both articles being authoritative, a great deal that is new regarding these two famous characters is revealed. Another article on a topic which has been discussed a good deal lately is one entitled "The Twenty Greatest Men"—Mr. Andrew Carnegie's recent list being taken as a basis. An article which will interest women readers is entitled "The Bride of
To-day: How Wedding Customs Have Changed." "Great Billiard Players
Compared" is a contribution by John Roberts. The short stories are numerous and by popular writers.

Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Brimming measure of terse, authentic articles and unusual illustrations is in store for Popular Mechanics Magazine readers in its April number. Activity in the fields of science and invention seems never to decrease, nor can anyone forecast with assurance the next turn it may take. Therefore, a magazine of the nature of Popular Mechanics is never
at a loss for interesting material.
The chief problems are to choose the worthy from the inconsequential, to discern the possibilities of each development, and, above all, to ascertain and publish facts. An article on "Those Wright Patents," by James R. Quirk, in the April number, is a noteworthy instance of this last point. First-hand information tested by basic principles always appeals to common sense. There are 273 articles and 301 pictures in the April magazine.

Saves Leg of Boy.

"It seemed that my 14-year old boy would have to lose his leg, on account of an ugly ulcer, caused by a bad bruise," wrote D. F. Howard, Aquone, N. C. "All remedies and doctors treatment failed till we tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and cured him with one box." Cures burns, boils, skin eruptions, piles. 25 cents
at all druggists.

Advantage of Concrete Buildings.
It has been shown in practice that concrete buildings require less artificial light than those of slow burning mill construction. This is owing to the reflection of light from the white walls and ceilings and columns and also to the fact that it is possible to supply buildings of this character with greater window area.

Mrs. Powell Almost Dead

Dry Ridge, Ky.—"I could hardly walk across the room," says Mrs.
Lydia Powell, of Dry Ridge, "before I tried Cardui. I was so poorly, I was almost dead. Now I can walk four miles and do my work with much more ease. I praise Cardai for my wonderful cure." Cardai is successful in benefiting sick women, because it is composed of ingredients, that act specifically on the womanly constitution, relieving headache, backache, irregularity, misery and distress. Only a good medicine could show such continual increase in popularity as Cardui has for the past 50 years. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Fortunes In Faces.

There's often much truth in the saying "her face is her fortune,"
but its never said where pimples, skin eruptions blotches, or other blemishes disfigure it. Impure blood is back of them all, and shows the need of Dr. King's New Life Pills.
They promote health and beauty.

ANTIQUITIES FOUND IN SPAIN

Apparently Rich Field for Those Who Are Fond of Making Such a Collection.

Spain is considered by art collectors a lucrative field; and many interesting antiques are picked up here
from time to time. Seville has numerous shops where antiques are sold, and where the old Spanish needlework may be purchased. This section of the country has so recently (comparatively speaking) been invaded by tourists that art buyers
claim to find here many desirable
things of which the more frequented countries have long since been almost "sold out." Probably the old Spanish needlework and the wood carvings are the most characteristic
"finds," though the antique Spanish and the lustrous Moorish tiles are also much sought. Of course paintings are eagerly scanned, and occasionally a Murillo school picture comes to sale. As the history of this section of Spain is so rich, there are many antiquities that date from the Roman period, such as earthen vases
and earthen lamps, also a little jewelry and many trinkets, which are constantly being dug up in the ruins of buried cities; there are several
such in this district, notably Italica, near Seville.

TWELFTH CENTURY SKATING.

Skating must have been a difficult
art before the introduction of steel blades, yet Londoners used to go in
for it as early as the twelfth century.
Fitzstephen, in his "Description of London," published in 1180, records that "when the great fenne or moore (which watereth the walls of the cite on the North side) is frozen, many young men play on the yce; . . .
some striding as wide as they may doe slide swiftlie; some tye bones
to their feete and under their heeles,
and shoving themselves with a little picked staffe do slide as swiftlie as a bird flyeth in the aire or an arrow
out of a crossbow."

SUNDRIES.

Don't think a girl will coo like a dove just because she is pigeontoed.
Optimism isn't just grinning, but this is where most of us "get off."
"This is a dog's life," yawned the vivisectionist, as he rolled up his sleeves preparatory to the slaughter.
Money may talk, but it is usually a bit ungrammatical.
A ring on the hand is worth two
at the door.
That will be about all now.—
Judge.

PLAYING HER CARDS.

Tommy—May I stay up a little longer?
Ethel—I want to see you and Mr.
Green playing cards.
Mr. Green—But we are not going to play cards.
Tommy—Oh, yes you are, for I heard mamma saying to Ethel that everything depended on the way in which she played her cards tonight.
—Auburn Citizen.

NEVER PHASED HER.

Mr. Niggard—I'm sorry to say,
dear, regarding—er—that birthday
gift I promised you—er—diamonds are up in price now, higher than I can afford—
Mrs. Niggard—Yes, it is disappointing—
Mrs. Niggard—Yes, it's too bad that you'll have to pay more than you can afford.

RULE ENFORCED.

"Why can't I bring my dog in this car? I know dogs are allowed on cars."
"It's the law against expectora-tion, sir. You see, yours is a Spitz dog."

It is the magazine for the busy business man, or for the person who wants to lull away a summer's afternoon, and be agreeably informed at the same time. It is profusely illustrated, and tells in a simple and interesting way of the discoveries of scientists, the achievements of inventors, the facts of engineering and exploration, and the opening of every new field of human endeavor. What Jack London says:—"I have just chanced upon my first copy of TECHNICAL WORLD MAGAZINE. There isn't anything like it. I want more, and I cannot wait for them to come, so I am sending you herewith check for which please enter my subscription and send me immediately the last two years' back numbers."

HE LIVED THROUGH NIGHT

But Resourceful Texan Had Been Gone an Hour When Landlord Discovered How He Did It.

A Texas cowman stopped at a little hotel up in Oklahoma. The night was cold, and the bed clothes were thin. After trying to sleep for an hour the guest dressed and went downstairs.

"I can't sleep in that bed," he said.

"What's the matter?" the proprietor asked.

"Too cold."

The hotel man was not in the least abashed.

"All you fellows from Texas kick about the bed clothes being too thin, but I notice you come down alive the next morning, all right."

The guest returned to his doom, pulled the carpet off the floor, ripped it and cut it into three or four thicknesses of bed cover and got his night's rest. The next morning the proprietor greeted him with:

"I thought you'd come down alive."

"O, I made out," the other replied.

The hotel man thought he detected a spark in the Texan's eye, but that resourceful gentleman had been gone an hour when his host finally tore downstairs with a gun in his hand, shouting anathemas down the trail.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

DICKENS IS FOR ALL TIME

Jeannette L. Gilder Declares the Fame of the Great Novelist Will Endure.

What do I think of Dickens? I can answer that question best by the one word—everything. I think everything of Dickens. Dickens, Thackeray and Balzac are my favorite novelists, and I cannot say which I like the best.

There is absolutely no question of the permanence of Dickens' fame and his lasting literary importance. Dickens is for all time. His books will last forever, will always be read and loved. The reason for this lies in the universality of his characters. His types are not types of merely one time. They belong to today as much as to the day when he wrote them. There may be a fad or two in Dickens' novels, but for the most part they are not fads, but belong to all time, and appeal to a steady audience.—Jeannette L. Gilder, in the New York Times.

INDIAN GAMBLING.

Ishi, the last of the Deer Creeks, gave exhibitions of aboriginal gambling with his friend, Ansichamnana of the Yuki tribe.

When Ansichamnana and Ishi gamble with their sticks and bones the observer is forced to concede that for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain "the heathen Chinese" is not in it for a minute.

With the Indians gambling is a mental process, much the same as mind reading. In principle their game is similar to the childhood play of "button, button, who's got the button," but it is a serious business when two or three hundred people are watching to applaud the winner.—San Francisco Call.

SENSATIONAL

"You know Smith pretends to be such a very upright and high-principled man."

"Yes?"

"Well, he was caught yesterday taking a well-known young married woman out to dine."

"Who was she?"

"His wife."

BRILLIANT SHOWING.

"I suppose Miss Millyuns has some magnificent presents among her wedding gifts?"

"They were superb. Some of them, indeed, showed reckless expense. Her father gave her a pair of tubs of butter and the groom's rich uncle sent a crate of eggs."

EVIDENCE.

"Is your husband sticking to his resolution to give up smoking?"

"Mercy, no! Haven't you noticed how good-natured he is?"

PLAIN ENOUGH.

"Did you succeed in getting a good, plain cook?"

"Well, she wouldn't take a prize at a beauty show."

STEADFAST CONFIDENCE

The Following Statement Should Form Conclusive Proof of Merit to Every Hopkinsville Reader.

Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful endorers who say their confidence has been undiminished by lapse of time? These are the kind of statements that are appearing constantly in your local papers for Doan's Kidney Pills. They are twice-told and confirmed with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following? It's from a resident of this locality.

Perry McCulley, Earlington, Ky., says: "You are at liberty to continue using my endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills as heretofore. Whenever I have had occasion to use them I have been benefited. I feel that I am doing nothing more than my duty in publicly recommending this preparation. Doan's Kidney Pills restored my kidneys to their normal condition, regulated the kidney action and removed the pains in my back, in fact improved my health. I obtained this remedy and have certainly been pleased with the results of its use."

RAPID RISE.

"A man came to town the other day and he hadn't been here more than twenty-four hours before everybody was looking up to him."

"How did that happen?"

"He got a contract to paint the flagstaff on our tallest building."

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man an unhappy slave. For impure blood and sluggish liver, use Burdock Blood Bitters. On the market 35 years. $1 00 a bottle.

Trouble With Ladies' Watches. "We always have a vast deal more trouble with women than with men about the watches they carry," said a jeweler. "No matter how expensive a lady's watch or how correctly made it seems to need regulation and repair about twice as often as a man's watch. Of course most women forget to wind their watches, but aside from that they wear them so irregularly that the watch has the same environment about three days in seven."

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. The result was lasting."—Hon. John B. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.

Electrify the Pupils.

They are using electricity in primary school education in Stockholm. Just how it is used does not appear, but we are told that the "classroom is subjected to electricity." And records are being kept to ascertain whether the electrically trained youngsters acquire the three Rs with greater precision and dispatch than those that are being brought up on sunlight, common sense and the rod.

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, will lead to chronic constipation. Doan's Regulents operate easily. 25c a box at all stores.

Scotch Dog's Business Instinct. Left one night on Wagonfire mountain with 3,086 sheep by the death of John Sagoday, her master, one female shepherd dog two weeks later delivered to Manuel Saunders, owner of the sheep, 3,086 of the animals, having lost only one during two weeks of privation. The dog's achievement was carried out despite the fact that she was the mother of puppies only a few days old when her master died.—From Our Dumb Animals.

Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil for such emergencies. Two sizes 25 and 50c at all stores.

A Grim Reminder. "Doctor," said the desperate heavy-weight, "give me something to make me weigh less." "That sort of thing merely makes you dangerously ill." "I don't care if it does." "Very well. But I can't see why you should go to all that trouble merely to make labor a little lighter for your pallbearers."

A Frenchman in Paris finds he cannot marry because the original birth register recorded him as a "female" and he is seeking to marry a woman. He is already a widower, having married once where the registry record was not required. He will have to leave France to wed, such is the red tape in that country.

At Macon, Ga., a "Dr. Butts" named G. F. Tyncl shot and killed his sister-in-law's beau, G. H. Taylor, when he caught the couple hugging and kissing. The heart-broken girl testified that the young man's caresses were not resisted, as they were to have been married the next day. The marriage license was found in Taylor's pocket.

The death of Senator Bob Taylor will cause universal sorrow throughout the whole South. He was easily the best loved of all public men in the South and it has also been stated that he was the most popular member of the United States Senate. Light-hearted, joyous and kind in all his impulses, there is no man living to take his place in many respects. His loss to the country is a public calamity.

Prostrated With a Fatal Stroke of Paralysis.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hanbery, widow of the late J. W. Hanbery, was stricken with paralysis Sunday at the home of her son in law, Mr. J. H. Dillman, on Route 2, near Casky, and her condition is critical. Her entire left side is involved and her vocal organs are partially affected. Mrs. Hanbery is 85 years old and owing to her extreme age no hope is entertained for her recovery. She is a member of South Union Baptist church and a woman of the noblest christian character. She has eight children, five sons and three daughters.

Lynched Two.

Blacksburg, S. C., March 29.—Joe Brinson and Frank Whisonant, negroes, about thirty years old, were lynched by a small mob, who broke down the jail door after all policemen on duty had retired for the night. The negroes were taken to a blacksmith shop and hanged from the rafter.

The negroes, it was alleged, had taken a respectable white man to a deserted spot in a cemetery and made him drink a pint of whisky, after which they forced him to an unmentionable action.

30 Not Too Old.

The School Board of Switzerland has made an order stopping women teachers from teaching in the public schools when they reach the age of 30 years. Many young women who admit that they are 30 have raised a great protest and in a test case the general council has decided in favor of the teachers.

NEWSPAPER THE BEST.

"In planning any systematic advertising campaign one of the first steps is a selection of the best medium, which, naturally, is the one reaching the greatest number and most desirable class of people at the least proportionate cost. This requirement is fully met by the newspaper, which affords any concern dealing directly with the people the quickest and proportionately a very cheap method of getting in touch with the greatest number."—R. F. Adams.

EITHER WOULD SUIT.

The condemned man was asked if there was anything he desired. He brightened up.

They told him this was impossible.

Value of Words.

Words are wise men's counters—they do not reckon by them; but they are the money of fools.—Thomas Hobbes.

"Just a countryman—that's all," is the way the grower of this remarkable ear of corn, Mr. Fred C. Palin, styles himself. Though he is admitted to be one of the leading corn experts in the country—one whose services are greatly in demand as a judge of corn exhibits, Mr. Palin asks for no greater honor or distinction than to be known as a plain Hoosier farmer, and while he openly professes a reasonable pride in the achievement of growing the famous ear of corn which was adjudged the most perfect ever grown, it is without a shadow of ostentation.

away in the seed house. "Well," I said, "do you think you've got a good ear there?" "It looks to me like a good ear," he said. "What do you think of it?" "I picked it up and looked it over. 'Well,' I said finally, 'I think it is the most perfect ear of corn I ever saw. It's good enough to win the W. K. Kellogg, $1,000 trophy this year at Omaha.'"

"And I was confident the moment I saw it, and looked it over, that I held the trophy winner in my hand. So much so that when I left for Omaha to exhibit the ear, I took it

The World's Greatest Ear of Corn

VARIETY—Palin's Corn Flake Yellow. (Named after winning the W. K. Kellogg $1,000 Trophy.)

A HYBRID—The seventh year production.

PARENT PLANTS Male—Reid's Yellow Dent Female—Alexander's Gold Standard.

DIMENSIONS—Length, 10 1-8 inches. Circumference, 7 3-4 inches. Number of rows, 20. Length of kernels, 3-4 of an inch. Width of kernels, about 3-8 of an inch. Thickness of kernels, 1 6 of an inch. Arrangement, very uniform, kernels running in straight rows the entire length well to the ends of the ear, tip being well covered with dented grains. Weight, 20 ounces. Estimated proportions—corn, 92 per cent; cob, 8 per cent.

The champion ear of corn was not an accident. There can be no greater lesson in the value of careful study and painstaking selection of seed and breeding than the experience of this same Palin. The farmer who thinks he stands a chance to go into his corn field and by a piece of luck pick out an ear which Nature has fashioned even more perfectly and with it wrest the honors from this Indiana man, cannot do better to disabuse his mind of this fallacious notion than to read the story of Palin and his champion ear.

FRED C. PALIN.

In the first place, Palin knows corn. If there were no more proof of this fact than the bare story of the development and discovery of the champion ear, it would be enough. And in proof of this fact, here is the story as he told it himself:

"It was in November, 1910, and we were just harvesting our crop. The weather had been good, but we were a little late with the harvest. The men were going through the fields with the wagon in the usual way gathering the corn, and the harvest was a promising one.

"We have a sort of corn show at my farm all the time, and there is always an award for exceptionally good ears of corn—ears sufficiently true to type to permit of their being exhibited. There is a small box on every corn wagon in which the most perfect ears are thrown. These, when properly selected, constitute the seed corn, and among these more perfect ears we occasionally find an ear that we are willing to exhibit in that we are willing to exhibit in a contest.

"On the day the champion ear was found, I was at the house and at dinner time one of the men brought it in and laid it, with a number of other ears, upon the window sill in the well room for me to take and put out of my grip and showed it to the station agent with the words, 'That's the ear I'm going to win the $1,000 trophy with.'"

So there's the story of the champion ear as Palin told it himself. And on the strength of it who will say that Fred C. Palin doesn't justly merit the title, "The Man who Knows Corn?"

But that's not all of Palin's story. He tells it willingly, though modestly, for he knows that his story whenever told is a source of great encouragement of the thousands of farmers who never had a better chance than he had himself. Palin was born and brought up on a farm near Newtown, Ind. He has never owned a foot of farm land in his life, and the 360-acre farm on which the champion ear of corn which won the Kellogg Trophy was grown is a rented farm.

Mr. Palin's real experience as a farmer began about sixteen years ago. He had been on the road as a grocery specialty salesman, when he took a notion that he would rather be an agriculturist, so he took a few short courses at Purdue University and rented a portion of the farm he now occupies. Nine years ago he began carefully breeding this new variety of corn. For two years he planted two rows of Reid's Yellow Dent, then two of Alexander's Gold Standard, detasseling the Gold Standard. From the detasseled rows he picked for seed only the ears carrying the characteristics he wanted to reproduce, planting these in breeding plots and maintaining careful selection, so that in nine years' time he had developed a well-settled type.

The Palin champion ear was the first winner of the W. K. Kellogg National Corn Trophy, a handsome silver and enamel cup made by Tiffany of New York at a cost of $1,000. Mr. Kellogg as the originator and manufacturer of Toasted Corn Flakes naturally has a deep interest in the development of the higher grades of corn, for the company of which he is president, the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Co., requires ten thousand bushels of corn a day for the making of its product. The Kellogg trophy was offered to be awarded in annual competition for the best single ear of corn until won twice by the same producer. The fact that the Kellogg product is made only from selected white corn, while the winning ear was of a pronounced yellow type, was a peculiar feature. The Kellogg trophy was won in

Sentenced To Chair.

Paducah, Ky., March 31.—Probably a double electrocution will take place at the Eddyville penitentiary on April 19. Willard Richardson, who killed John Violett, in Carlisle county, a few days ago, is sentenced to die on this date. The other is Deputy Sheriff Ellis, of Burnside, Ky., who killed a magistrate and another court official as the result of an argument over a local option election. In all, there are seven to die in the electric chair in April. The others are: Charles and James Smith, negroes, who killed a white man and then skinned him to hide his identity, from Mason county; Cal Miracle, of Bell county, who killed his wife and another man; Ewing Bowling, of Breathitt county, who had killed a white man and a negro woman during a fit of anger; John Bowman, of Lebanon, who, with another, killed their joint paramour. Some of these cases have been appealed.

Finis Reynolds was shot three times and seriously wounded Friday afternoon by Frank Lile, his brother-in-law, twenty miles north of here. Reynolds' wife is Lile's sister, and Lile went to see her, she being ill. Reynolds was at a woodpile, and when Lile charged him with mistreating his wife, it is said Reynolds made at his brother-in-law with the axe. Lile fired three shots, two striking Reynolds in one of his arms, and the other entering his left breast. Lile surrendered and was released under bond. CAPT. NELSON

Withdraws From Contest For Lieutenant Colonel Third Regiment.

Capt. B. Gordon Nelson has withdrawn from the contest for lieutenant colonel of the Third Regiment, leaving Col. E. B. Bassett without opposition. As this was the only impending contest in the election next Saturday, it is now assured that all of the old officers will be elected unanimously.

Capt. Nelson in withdrawing says he was moved by a desire to do nothing to disturb the esprit de corps of the company, which threatened to be disturbed by the excitement of an animated contest that most likely would have been followed by bitterness and a lack of good feeling in the regiment.

PUZZLES FOR THE FISHERMEN

Nature is Playing Queer Pranks on the Fishing Grounds Off Massachusetts.

The otter trawler, Ripple, which with two sister boats reached T wharf this morning, ran into immense shoals of herring ninety miles southeast of Highland light. The herring were not the ordinary isolated school of a few thousand fish, but a whole collection of schools. The fish were large, too, and they judged that a netter could have made a year's stake all at once if all the fish could have been rounded up.

To back up this story the Ripple had physical proof that nature is playing strange pranks on the fishing grounds. The steamer brought in a sturgeon, one of the largest ever landed at the dock, and as far as could be learned the first specimen ever landed here in midwinter. Dressed, the sturgeon weighed 175 pounds, but as caught with head, tail and fins it tipped the scales at over 400 pounds. Sturgeon, like mackerel, is a warm weather fish, and just what this old fellow was doing out in freezing weather was a matter of conjecture. With a fresh sturgeon in and herring sighted in the offing T wharf wouldn't have been surprised this morning to have heard that mackerel were schooling in the Frog Pond.—Boston Globe.

LONE DOG KILLS WILDCAT

Battle Royal in Oregon in Which Canine Accomplishes Unprecedented Feat.

Punch, the four-year-old hound dog owned by F. J. Steward, established an unprecedented feat this week when he whipped a full-grown wildcat in a battle royal. H. C. R. Akin, who is the owner of the ranch which is managed by Steward, while walking across his ranch was accompanied by the hound, when the hound took up a trail which he discovered in the light fall of snow. The trail led up to an old burned fir snag. Upon coming up with the dog Akin found that the latter had treed a wildcat. Akin was unarmed, but managed to get the fierce animal where the dog could get at him. The wildcat and dog "mixed" immediately and the battle that followed was fierce. Both wildcat and dog were nigh well exhausted when the dog, revived by another spurt of strength, obtained a hold on the cat which finished the latter after a few minutes' additional struggle.—Sheridan correspondence Portland Oregonian.

PHYSICIAN'S LONG LIFE.

The distinction of being England's oldest doctor (and probably also the oldest practitioner in the world) belongs to Dr. Edgar Jones, M. R. C. S., who, a short time ago entered his one hundred and third year at his residence at Great Burstead, in Essex. Dr. Jones is an Essex magistrate, and in March last completed his sixtieth year as a member of the bench. He comes of a long-lived family; his father died at the age of ninety-two, his eldest brother and sister were both over ninety at the time of their death, whilst another brother is also nearing his one hundredth year.

TELEPHONE CAME IN HANDY.

Over in South Windham they stop runaway horses "by telephone." The other day two horses were going through the village at a terrific rate of speed and one farmer who attempted to stop the animals failed to grab them soon enough.

One of the members of the family rushed to the telephone and in a few seconds was in communication with a man further up the road who was ready to meet the horses and stopped them as they came along. No damage was done to the team.—Lewiston Journal.

HADN'T COUNTED ON THAT.

His Counsel—What are you beefing about? You'd rather go to the penitentiary for life than be hanged, wouldn't you?

Condemned Prisoner—Yes, sir; I don't mind that. But the judge says I got to spend the first week of it at hard labor!

FINE OLD MEMORIAL TOWER

On Town Bridge at Milford, Conn., it Records the Colonial History of the Place.

The town bridge at Milford, Conn., is a unique memorial of the colonial history of the place. Milford was first settled by colonists from the old English town of the same name, and the bridge, which was built to celebrate the town birthday, is an exact replica of an ancient one in the Milford over the sea. Every stone in the round tower is a memorial to some historic Milfordite. Over the massive door is the sculptured head of an Indian, supposed to be Ansantawae, the chief who sold the town site to the colonists in 1639. The knocker on the tower door once belonged to the old house where George Whitfield preached in 1770. The doorstep is from the mansion of Robert Treat, governor of the colony of Connecticut for thirty years. One stone is dedicated to the memory of Jonathan Law, a governor from 1742 to 1750. This stone also once formed part of the governor's threshold. Another large slab is inscribed with a tribute to the Wepawany Indians. On the bridge corner by the tower the town perpetuates in granite its gratitude to "Captain Thomas Tibbals (obit. 1703), in consideration of his helpfulness to show to first comers the place and the land records." Another tablet records the name of Peter Prudden, first pastor back in 1650. Several big blocks of masonry are inscribed with the names of the early settlers, and there is one stone bearing Milford's good opinion of itself in these words: "God sifted a whole nation that he might send choice grain to the wilderness."

ACTED AS A WET BLANKET

Indignant Lady's Rebuke Sounded Somewhat Incongruous, but Playgoers Will Understand.

It was a sweet, sad play, and there was hardly a dry handkerchief in the house. But one man in the gallery, "among the gods," irritated his companions excessively by refusing to take the performance in the proper spirit. Instead of weeping, he laughed. While others were mopping their eyes and endeavoring to stifle their sobs his own eyes brimmed with merriment, and he burst into inappropriate guffaws. At last the lady by his side turned upon him indignantly.

"I don't know what brought you here," she cobbled, with streaming eyes, and pressing her hand against her aching heart; "but if you don't like the play, you might let other people enjoy it!"

Raising Water With Air.

As all schoolboys know, a suction pump can theoretically elevate water only about thirty-three and one-third feet, a column of water of that height balancing the atmospheric pressure. A means has, however, been found of causing a suction pump to raise water to a height of even sixty feet. The invention was made by a workman in the French marine. Monsieur Eyserie, the chief engineer of the marine, remarked that one particular pump showed extraordinary qualities in drawing water from ships' holds. Inquiry developed the fact, says Harper's Weekly, that a workman had thought of the plan of introducing air into the water at the point where the suction was applied, thus producing an emulsion of air and water, which, because of its diminished density, was capable of being elevated to considerably greater heights than pure water.

Her Feats of Memory.

"I have heard and read of wonderful feats of memory," said Mrs. A. H. Brown of this city, "but not one of them was so remarkable as those exhibited by my own mother at 93, the age at which she recently died in Clyde, N. Y. That was her home for 65 years, but she was born in Phelps, N. Y.

"She was an ardent reader of the Scriptures and, having an exceptionally clear, vigorous mind, she was able, at even that advanced age, to repeat word for word the entire Gospels of St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John. In addition she could recite lengthy passages from books of favorite authors, and many poems, including epics and extended lyrics. My mother was also a good Latin scholar. She had seven daughters, of whom six, including myself, survive, as do sixteen great-grandchildren and twenty-one grandchildren."

The Real Thing.

"I s'pose," remarked the landlord of the tavern, "that Dave Splann is what you'd call a man-about town? He once short-changed a circus ticket seller; and another time he took out to supper two soubrettes that had been doing refined song and dance, interspersed with tumbling, at Hefty Mitchell's Oh-You-Kid moving picture theater; and threw an oyster stew right into an electric fan, just to show that he didn't care for expense. Aw, Dave's a reg'lar rounder, if there ever was one!"—Puck.

Literally.

"Did you see where a murderer in New York, sentenced to the electric chair, declared the joke was on him?" "That sort of humor is shocking."

Not to Be Done.

"This boy is a bad egg, sir." "Then I suppose it is of no use to try and whip him."

History of A Handbag

By Ella Randall Pearce

"I'll take this one," said Bruce Bowle, lifting a hand-bag from the counter where a dozen or more were laid out for inspection. "Can you put it in a box for me?"

"Sure," smiled the obliging saleswoman, for young Bowle was good to look upon and his voice rang pleasantly. He was looking abstractedly over the top of her elaborate blonde coiffure, however; so she switched down a white pasteboard box, dropped the hand-bag within, and, snapping on the cover, passed it up to the wrapper at the end of the counter.

As soon as he had received his package, Bruce hastened away, unconscious of the following glances of the pretty and somewhat nettled young saleswoman.

"He's got a sweetheart and that's a present for her," mentally commented the girl behind the counter; and as the broad shoulders and erect dark head of her late customer disappeared in the crowd, she became conscious of a high, agitated voice being directed at her across her wares.

"Miss, have you seen anything of my hand-bag? I left it here a few moments ago."

The saleswoman swept a hurried glance over the assortment of bags before her; then her face crimsoned. She made a pretense of looking over the goods, and her heart beat wildly as she considered the possible consequences of her own inattention.

"Your bag—isn't here," she faltered. "I—I don't know anything about it. Better make a complaint at the desk, and leave your name."

Meanwhile, as the agitated saleswoman suspected, young Bowle was carrying off the property. The first intimation he had of the truth, was in a telephone call from his married sister, ten minutes after she had received a package delivered by a messenger on the morning of her birthday.

"Bruce, is this you? What does it mean—that bag you sent me?"

"What's the matter—don't you like it? You wanted one of those Japanese things on a cord, so I bought—"

"Bought? Why, Bruce, it isn't a new bag at all. It's somebody's—don't you understand?"

"What!" shouted Bruce. Then, "Nathalie, you must be mistaken. I just bought it down town. Took it off the counter myself—girl put it in a box. How could it be anybody's?"

"Can you put it in a box for me?"

"I don't know how it happened," called back Nathalie. "But it's got papers in—and smelling salts—and a lovely picture, a girl's picture—and some money. Shall I send it back to your office? O, you dear, of course I know you'll make it all right with me. Get one as near like it as you can—and an empty one this time."

Nathalie's laugh rang merrily over the wire, and Bruce was smiling as he hung up the receiver; but his brows drew together in a perplexed frown as he opened the hand-bag half an hour later and looked over the contents.

The papers were important legal documents of some kind—and there was a letter addressed to "Miss Rita Carlton." On the back of the picture which Nathalie had designated as "lovely" was written in a girlish hand, "With fondest love of Rita."

Bruce looked at the pictured face long and earnestly. Something in the wide, dark eyes serious under their level brows, and in the contradictory curve of the mutinous lips fascinated him. The hair was parted and rippled low over the serene brow, and a pair of graceful shoulders rose out of folds of material fastened by a single rose.

The young man laid down the photograph, then picked it up again, seeking to analyze the particular charm it seemed to possess for him. Was it in the eyes, deep, appealing and honest? Was it in the smiling, saucy lips—or in the fine poise of the slender throat, above the delicate, sloping shoulders?

"By Jove! It is a lovely face. Rita—the name suits her. If I were to meet a girl like this, and she looked at me with such eyes, and smiled at me with those lips—well, Miss Rita Carlton, I'm glad I stole your hand-bag—for something tells me it is yours—and now I shall see you."

Nathalie had expected that her brother would go at once to the store where he had made his unusual purchase, and, having returned the bag, make another selection in honor of the day. Forgetful of natal days and promised favors, however, Bruce Bowle waited until he had finished his work at the office, and then made his way to a certain address corresponding with the one written on the letter in the hand-bag.

Miss Rita Carlton was at home, he learned, and the elevator speedily brought him to the door of her apartment. With no little trepidation, he found himself ushered into a tiny reception room, all green and gold, with a great cluster of crimson roses glowing on the center table, and dim lights twinkling from the shaded sconces. A swishing of soft silken skirts announced Miss Carlton's coming, and Bruce turned with a scarcely concealed eagerness. Would she appear as lovely as her photograph?

For an instant, his heart seemed to cease beating, and a strange chill swept over him. A dignified little woman, pale, gray-haired, with bright black eyes sunken beneath straight brows was standing before him.

"You wished to see me?" asked Miss Carlton, in thin, polite tones.

"I—yes—that is," Bruce pulled himself together. "I called to see Miss Rita Carlton."

"That is my name."

"Then, I think I have your property here in this box. A hand-bag—"

"Oh, how fortunate! Let me see. I am indeed glad, Mr.—"

"My name is Bruce Bowle."

"Oh, Mr. Bowle, how can I thank you? You see some of these things are valuable. How did it fall in your hands, I wonder?"

Bruce told his story while she looked over her papers.

"Yes, they are all right—but where is my picture? Why, I was sure I had that picture in it—but perhaps—now, I might have left it somewhere. You didn't see a picture—but of course not. Well, I'm very much obliged, I'm sure, Mr. Bowle. Good-day."

Bruce descended in the elevator with his spirits fallen to zero. The picture—the lovely face that had enthralled him, was that of an old-time beauty, now faded and lined by the relentless hand of time. Only the dark eyes shining out of the white elderly face spoke of the loveliness that had graced the youth of Miss Rita Carlton.

The young man was surprised at the shock of his own disappointment, the bitterness of the mood which had taken possession of him. He stood irresolute in the doorway of the building with a feeling that somehow life had suddenly grown gray and empty. There was nothing that he could think of that he wished to do; no place where he cared to go. A strange apathy seemed to have fallen upon him, and robbed him of all desire and ambition.

As he stood there, the front door opened and a blast of chill evening air rushed in and made him shiver. Then he felt the blood coursing warmly and wildly through his veins. There, before him, like an apparition of the past, stood "Rita," young, beautiful, blooming, with her dusky eyes staring childishly at him, and her soft scarlet lips parted. They both stood silently gazing into each other's eyes for a full moment; then Bruce realized that she was waiting for him to step aside and allow her to pass.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Rita," he said gently.

She walked slowly toward the elevator and looked back as she was carried aloft. The young man stood just within the door, his hat in his hand and his upraised eyes solemn and shining. Her own wondering, intent gaze held his until the car bore her out of sight.

Four days later, Bruce Bowle, through the courtesy of a mutual friend who was discovered after an arduous campaign among his acquaintances in town, was presented formally to Miss Rita Carlton and her charming niece and namesake who was visiting her for the winter season. Four months later, young Rita was betrothed to young Bowle; and on the day of her marriage, early in the following May, the elder Miss Carlton presented her with a hand-bag—the one which had brought about the romantic turn of affairs.

"I know you will prize this for its associations, Rita," she said. "And inside I have put a part of the legacy which was to have been yours some day."

Bruce placed a fond arm around the girl.

"We appreciate your goodness—both of us—but nothing that bag can ever hold will be as valuable to me as the article I now confess to having stolen from it—this."

Slipping his hand in an inside pocket, he drew out the treasure which had never left his possession since he first saw it—Rita's photograph.

"Now, that I have the original," he said, "you may have your picture back again, dear Aunt Rita!"

Forgot the Fringe.

His chief characteristics to the casual observer were an assertively pompous manner and an assertively bald head. For about an hour he had monopolized the conversation around the club fireplace by the recital of the struggle that had raised him from poverty in youth to affluence in mature manhood.

"Yes, gentlemen," he continued proudly, "I am a self-made man."

A wearied voice came from the recesses of an armchair: "I should think, then, that you would have put more hair on the top of your head."

And the conversation was at last

For Women Who Care

Of course you use an antiseptic in your family and in the care of your own person, and you want the best.

Instead of what you have been using such as liquid or tablet antiseptics or peroxide, won't you please try Paxtine,
a concentrated antiseptic powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

Paxtine is more economical, more cleansing, more germicidal and more healing than anything you ever used.

Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC

In the toilet—to cleanse and whiten
the teeth, remove tartar and prevent decay. To disinfect the mouth, destroy disease germs, and purify the breath.
To keep artificial teeth and bridgework clean and odorless. To remove nicotine from the teeth and purify the breath
after smoking. To eradicate perspiration odors by sponge bathing.

As a medicinal agent for local treatment of feminine ills where pelvic catarrh, inflammation and ulceration exist, nothing equals hot douches of Paxtine. For ten years the Lydia E.
Pinkham Med. Co. has been regularly advising their patients to use it because of its extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal power. For this purpose alone Paxtine is worth its weight in gold. Also for nasal catarrh, sore throat, inflamed eyes, cuts and wounds.
All druggists, 25 and 50 cents a box.
Trial box and testimony of 31
women free on request.

TEACH HORSE TO KNOW VOICE

Animal Likes the Sociability of It and Will Learn Many Words, According to Authorities.

Talk to your horse and teach him
to obey your voice as well as the reins, advises a writer in the Spirit of the West. This may prove valuable if, as sometimes happens, the lines break or become unbuckled.
Besides, the horse likes the sociability of it. He easily learns a dozen or more words, but be careful to use them only for exactly what you mean.
For instance, "whoa" means to stop at once and stand perfectly still;
"get up" to go straight ahead and at once; "back" to step backward;
"easy" or "steady" to slow up.

These words the horse readily learns and takes kindly to. "Walk"
means to change at once to a walk;
and "all right," spoken in a calm,
reassuring tone, means "don't be afraid, that won't hurt you," and it is wonderful to see what a calming effect it has. Speak firmly, but not sharply to the horses, for they are nervous creatures. Talking to your horse will make him more intelligent and more friendly.

SALESMAN HAS GOOD THING

Though the Nature of His Wares Was Not at First Understood, He Is Doing Well.

An enterprising typewriter salesman who is "drummer" for a machine that can be easily carried about—his friends call it "a coffee grinder," its so compact—recently hit upon a scheme for introducing it into private houses, where sales are hard to make. He shipped one hundred of the little typewriters to as many houses along Fifth avenue
and the high-class residence streets adjoining. His first "come back"
was a letter from a Fifth avenue
woman, who advised him to "be more careful," as he had given the household "a terrible shock," because everybody, from the mistress to the kitchen maid, feared "the queer looking box contained a bomb," and they were about to immerse the whole thing in a laundry tub when a grocer's boy told them what it was.
However, she inclosed a check for
"the queer looking box," and the salesman is now plainly marking all his samples.—New York Tribune.

MADE FORTUNE IN MUSKRATS.

Having paid for a fine farm near Milton by the trapping of muskrats, Mrs. James Jones has so fallen in love with the work that she finds it impossible to give it up. Thus far this season she has broken all her previous records for the number of muskrats trapped.

Mrs. Jones is not only a trapper of muskrats but is an expert rifle
shot and occasionally kills an otter, a mink, an opossum or a raccoon. In five years the efforts of the woman have resulted in the purchase of a nearby farm which she and her family now occupy.—Milton Letter to

MACBETH AND SUMURUN.

"I perfectly adore Shakespeare's plays," announced Miss Marvel, who had been volubly discoursing on the theaters to an entranced acquaintance.
"Now, 'Macbeth'—to my mind, that's Shakespeare's greatest masterpiece. I've seen it eight times.
It's perfectly wonderful. But I think they make a mistake in the way they present it. Now, the way I'd like to see that play done would be to have the most simple stage setting,
and then give it the way 'Sumurun'
is given—without words, you know.
It would be fine. And I believe it would take, too."

TOO REALISTIC.

Mrs. Gramercy—If you want a nice hall rug why don't you get one of those tiger skins with the real head on it?

Mrs. Gayboy—I never could use one of those things in my hall. You don't know how imaginative my husband is every time he comes home late.

SOCIETY WHIRL.

"Dear, can you help me to receive next Friday?"

"Sorry, love, but I'm on picket duty, with the shirt waist strikers."

BACK TO THE SOIL.

"Don't you like to get close to nature sometimes?"

"Sure! I'm very fond of these palm rooms."

SCOTT'S VESSEL

Returns With News From The English Pole Hunter.

Wellington, New Zealand., March 31.—Capt. Robert F. Scott's vessel Terra Nova, which carried the British expedition to the Antarctic, has arrived at Akaroa, a harbor in Banks Peninsula, New Zealand, but has not brought back Captain Scott or the members of his expedition. The commander of the Terra Nova brought instead the following brief news from Scott:

"I am remaining in the Antarctic for another winter in order to continue and complete my work."

The latest news sent back by Captain Scott to his base at McMurdo Sound showed that on January 3 he had reached a point 150 miles from the south pole and was still advancing.

Four Suicides

Four suicides in two days was Louisville's record last week. Edwin A. B. D., 59, formerly a prosperous tobaccoist, walked into the river and was drowned. He was despondent because of his inability to obtain employment.

Brooding over the death of his wife a short time ago, G. E. Pearman, aged 50, of Hodgenville, Ky., took his life by twisting a bed sheet about his neck and swinging off a banister.

Eugene Zelt, a grocery clerk, fired a bullet into his brain, in his room on South Sixth street. Louis T. Demf, a retired policeman, ended his life similarly.

AMUSEMENTS

One of the most fascinating moments in the presentation of "The Wolf," the phenomenally successful romantic drama which comes to Holland's Opera House Thursday night, April 4, is Jules Beaubien's rendition of "the great desire" speech in the second act. Women and girls have displayed the keenest interest over the manner in which the actor renders the lines, as well as the lines themselves, and many have asked for them that they might use the verses on sofa covers and rugs.

DOG ACQUITTED

Of The Charge Of Being a Sheep Killer.

A unique trial was held in the quarterly court at Nicholasville, Ky., recently when "Shep," a collie dog belonging to a prominent citizen, was the prisoner at the bar. Several days before some dogs had killed sheep belonging to another citizen, and "Shep" being in the number accused, the owner of the sheep killed wanted to kill him. As the dog was very valuable, his owner objected to his being killed and the case went to court. The trial resulted in an acquittal, as it was proven beyond a doubt that "Shep" was not on the place when the sheep were killed, and also that he was not a sheep killing dog.
